Set on the edge of All Saints and Smallridge, Hilltop occupies an elevated position enjoying southerly views across open countryside. The village lies on the fringes of the Blackdown Hills National Landscape and offers a popular primary school, village hall and the Ridgeway Inn. The market town of Axminster is to the south with a mainline railway station to Exeter and London, whilst the Jurassic Coast at Lyme Regis is within easy reach.

A delightful stone cottage beneath a man made slate roof, centred around an open plan living space. The sitting room features a Morso wood burner set within a stone and brick fireplace, tiled flooring and double doors opening onto the south facing garden. The kitchen is fitted with a range of units and a gas cooker. On the first floor are two well proportioned bedrooms with semi vaulted ceilings and a family bathroom.

A parking area lies off the road with a timber gate leading into the garden. The cottage garden is well stocked and backs onto open fields, with areas of lawn, established planting and a productive vegetable garden including raspberries. A covenant restricts building on part.

At the far end is a purpose built timber studio created in 2011, comprising two light rooms ideal for home working or ancillary accommodation. Two timber sheds provide further storage.
