A beautifully presented four-bedroom terraced Edwardian house, situated in a commanding position on one of Queen's Park's most sought-after roads. The property offers an outstanding opportunity to acquire a gorgeous family home that's equidistant from the bustle of both Queen's Park and Kensal Rise.

Upon entry, it becomes immediately apparent that the current owners have cosseted the house for several years. The house has been decorated tastefully and it's clear the owners intended to implement an interior design scheme that's contemporary in scope, yet deeply sympathetic to the original character of the property.

The Ground Floor is split into two predominant living areas; there's a substantial double reception room at the front, while the rear comprises a sizeable open-plan kitchen/diner. The double reception room retains a number of exquisite original Edwardian architectural features, including picture railing, cornicing, hardwood strip-flooring and a cast-iron fireplace.

The rear is impressive and is abundant in natural light throughout the day owing to the property's southerly aspect, two sets of double doors and four glass apertures above the side-return. The garden is immaculate, offering a large patio, a 38ft lawn and a rear studio. The studio could be a work-from-home space or gym.

The upper floors comprise four bedrooms, one of which is ensuite. The principal bedroom is situated at the front of the First Floor and is serviced by the family bathroom in the midriff. The loft conversion offers an ensuite shower room.

Early viewing is highly recommended.
